A Glass Of Cyprus

Lympia, Nicosia region

As the last divided European capital, Nicosia is a city that has managed to hold onto its historical character and authenticity throughout the years.

The tourism industry has been one of the main economic resources for Cyprus, but Nicosia- with its many villages, historical buildings, museums and festivals- has always attracted alternative and creative tourism.

The outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic has shed light on the need for additional steps towards the further development of the CCIs in Nicosia, which should take the preservation of the natural life of the city as their priority.

About

"A Glass of Cyprus" provides tailor-made tours in wineries in the Nicosia region. It introduces visitors to the process of wine-making and wine-tasting through tours in vineyards and communication with the winemakers. In addition, it organizes a number of activities that form part of the Cypriot culture, such as cooking traditional food, olive picking and cheese making.

How this city tour showcases accessibility

The tours are available to everyone who is interested in wine making, locals as well as foreign tourists, creating a multicultural experience for the participants. In addition, there is a great emphasis on the involvement of youth by offering them the opportunity to become more aware of local traditions.

How this city tour showcases entrepreneurship

The tours help increase the income of locals who can sell their wines and other local products to the visitors. In addition local markets and traditional restaurants become part of alternative tourism, providing opportunities for new sustainable initiatives in the Nicosia region (and mainly in rural areas).

The tours mainly take place in small villages in the Nicosia region, avoiding the main tourist attractions.	The tours include the active participation of locals, improving the local economy. In addition, most tours are organised in small groups, respecting the destination's nature.	The tours do not target solely foreign tourists; they also target local visitors. In addition, there is a great emphasis on helping younger people become more aware of local traditions.	All the tours are advertised on https://www.agrotourism.com.cy. "A Glass of Cyprus" makes great use of their social media accounts, sharing all of their events on their Facebook page.	The participation of locals is a critical part of most tours and local production (cheese making and olive picking) are promoted through the tours. The history of the villages and local traditions are also part of the tours' storytelling.	The tours provide an income for locals who can sell their wines and other local products to the visitors. In addition local markets and traditional restaurants become part of alternative tourism.
